WALLA WALLA

How does the luxury hotel at a winery manage an almost Southern feel? A wide porch fronts the rentable main farmhouse like it expects you to gaze at the sunbaked wheat fields year-round. A carriage house converted to accommodations has the crisp lines of a Kentucky barn home to prize racehorses. (Only from outside; indoors they're luxury suites.) The tasting room and restaurant run by Mike Easton sits close to the burbling creek that runs through the property.
