WASHINGTON OFFERS ALLURING ACCOMMODATIONS AS BEAUTIFUL AND VARIED AS THE STATE ITSELF

written by Corinne Whiting

FOR EVERY DREAMY destination across the Washington map, we could find just as many personal travel styles. While some wanderers plan getaways around revitalizing rest and quiet luxury, others choose to be closer to the outdoors in more rustic digs. We've culled a list of different options throughout the state, with the hope that—no matter your personality or lodging preference—you'll discover the perfect post-adventure spot to suit your style.

STEVENSON

SKAMANIA LODGE

The Columbia River Gorge's iconic Skamania Lodge lures nature lovers to its 175 wooded acres on the border of Oregon. Reminiscent of buildings from the early 1900s, the four-story Cascadian-style lodge features high-pitched roofs, plenty of timber and native stone. While many guests enjoy the regional draw of craft breweries, wineries and water activities such as windsurfing, on-site perks include an aerial park, zip lines, an axe-throwing area and a loop fitness trail with five stations and seventeen activities. Newly renovated guest rooms exhibit Native American-inspired designs and local photography that sheds light on this storied destination. Perks range from cozy fireplaces to private balconies with gorge views. Feeling playful? Book a tree house with a twist (we're talking about lavish queen beds)—the ultimate spot to rest your head among the towering trees.

SEATTLE

CEDARBROOK LODGE

On its beautiful Seattle Southside property, Cedarbrook Lodge simultaneously keeps guests within city limits—and helps them feel as though they've been whisked off to a secluded getaway. Tucked onto 18 acres of naturally restored wetlands, this resort is only a stone's throw from Sea-Tac Airport, and it provides flyers with a complimentary shuttle. All Cedarbrook stays are enhanced by homey guest rooms, Northwest-inspired breakfasts, snacks in airy living rooms and access to an outdoor hot tub. Copperleaf Restaurant serves seasonal fare that's been locally sourced (with many ingredients grown in the garden out back). The lodge's commitment to reducing its carbon footprint is evidenced by such efforts as on-site composting and a reclamation pond.

VASHON ISLAND

LODGES ON VASHON

An island escape that's only a twenty-minute ferry from West Seattle, Vashon proves an easy getaway for those wanting to relax with minimal commute time. These contemporary lodges feature hip, minimalist décor, keyless-entry technology, king beds, gas fireplaces and local products (from soaps to coffee) that show off the work of some of the island's finest artisans. Dreamy communal spaces—both indoors and out—are coveted places to curl up with a book, strum a guitar or socialize with friends.

TULALIP

TULALIP RESORT CASINO

About forty-five minutes north of Seattle, a surprise getaway destination with stunning mountain views rises just off I-5. Tulalip Resort Casino attracts visitors for its plentiful gaming offerings. But it also dazzles with luxurious accommodations, numerous dining options (eight in total, including Blackfish, known for its traditionally prepared salmon), a rejuvenating spa and the fascinating Hilibul Cultural Center and its 50-acre natural history preserve, a place to honor and learn about the Tulalip people and their neighboring communities. Tulalip Resort's recently refreshed 370 guest rooms have modern amenities and vibrant Coast Salish artwork and textures.
